PREFACE

THE first edition of the Periodicals Directory proved that a classified list of current periodicals, both foreign and domestic, is a valuable reference tool and merits wider use through a revised and enlarged edition. The directory is planned for those interested in business and industry as well as for librarians, not only as a tool for reference but also as an aid in the selection of titles for purchase.

The list does not aim to be exhaustive. No attempt at evaluation has been made, but the 8,200 titles represent the periodicals published in the United States and foreign countries, especially in England, France and Germany, which have been found most useful in American collections. Occasionally titles which seem to have limited or ephemeral value are listed, their inclusion being justified by their specialized interest. Monographs and many proceedings and transactions are omitted. Only such titles as appear at regular or stated periods of less than a year are considered.

The arrangement is alphabetical by subject. The periodicals are grouped according to a broad classification under which minor subjects are brought out in italics.

The entries include full title, date of origin, frequency, size, price, publisher, place and indication of supplements. The price, whenever possible, is given in the currency of the country wherein the periodical is published.

Indexing services are indicated by abbreviations. In the second edition an additional group of such services is included, namely: Annual Magazine Subject Index, Book Review Digest, Chemical Abstracts, Dramatic Index, Index to Labor Periodicals, Internationale Bibliographie der Zeitschriften Literatur, Abteilung A and B, and Subject Index to Periodicals (British).

The general characteristics of various periodicals are also indicated by abbreviations and this detail of the book is expanded.

Bibliographic compilations in the second edition are entered under each subject following the list of current periodicals. This is the most outstanding change in arrangement made by the editor in this section. The compilation of the bibliographies was made by Miss Adelaide C. Cutter, Periodicals Division, New York Public Library and regarding their scope and arrangement Miss Cutter is quoted:

"The purpose of the bibliography has been to group together for each subject as much assistance as possible in the use of the current periodicals listed in any given subject. In other words (1) any important lists that would augment the present list were included, (2) any indexes that would be a key to the material in the periodicals listed, (3) any handbooks or articles that would explain the use or value of the periodicals and (4) any sources for keeping the present list up-to-date.

An endeavor to include all current material of this nature was made. Single works or material that had ceased publication were selected and for each subject different criteria of selection were used. For example: old material would be of more use in philology than it would be in advertising. Furthermore for some subjects no such aids exist, for others only a few poor ones, and for still others an endless amount. Thus the selection was influenced by whatever material was available as well as by the nature of the subject itself.

A bibliography of this sort to be complete would require many volumes, and outside of the bases of selection for individual subjects the overlying rule has been to keep the practical, everyday needs of a general nature in mind rather than the fine distinctions and completeness necessary to advanced research."

The editor is greatly indebted to the administration of the New York Public Library for permission to use material and records from the various divisions; to Mr. Daniel C. Haskell, Bibliographer, for access to his files of cumulative indexes; and to the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, American Academy of Medicine, American Institute of Accountants, American Museum of Natural History, Horticultural Society of New York, Insurance Society of New York, Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York Bar Association and Teachers College, Columbia University, for the opportunity to consult freely their collections.

A debt of gratitude is due the staff of the Periodicals Division for their generous co-operation and individual recognition is given to Miss Cornelia R. Cochrane and Miss Eugenia Patterson:

Special acknowledgment is given to Mrs. Leonora Holsclaw for assistance in the work of the revision and to Miss Adelaide C. Cutter for her bibliography.

INTRODUCTION

IT WAS on the Fourth of July, 1873, that Henry Stevens, "Green Mountain Boy" transplanted to London, published what he called "American Books with Tails to 'em", a list of American periodicals and serials that had gone through his hands. Speaking "To the Inquisitive and Pertinent Reader" he pointed out that this "most important department" was full of "bibliographical puzzles", admitted that "the imperfections and shortcomings of this index are pre-supposed and allowed for", and closed by saying he felt it "almost insurmountable" to complete and define the field or the subject.

In the sixty years and more that have slipped by others have followed Stevens' footsteps, disagreeing doubtless on various points, but agreeing heartily as to his definition of the problem, the difficulty of being accurate, comprehensive, satisfactory while working with such things. Periodicals certainly have tails to them, elusive, slippery, now and then with a sting, seldom quiet or still, normally difficult to grasp or to pin down.

The "World List of Scientific Periodicals" appeared in London in 1925, a mammoth and comprehensive record of 24,000 titles received by British libraries, a title record, with no subject arrangement. Ayer and Greenly and Willing and Sperling and Sijthoff and the French "Annuaire" all come to mind as national and international lists, but in most of them the newspaper side is predominant, rather than the subject arrangement of periodicals as distinguished from newspapers. Miss Ulrich's list made its bow in 1932, a first aid kit rather than a warehouse stock list. Call for a second edition in less than three years speaks in no uncertain way as to the need the book has met. Some 2,500 new titles are noted in the second edition. No essential change has been made in the arrangement or in the principles of inclusion. The list still remains an international grouping by subjects, with an index of titles. It still is selective, rather than all-inclusive; still is world wide in scope; still is the bridge for the mass of print between the daily newspaper and the trade book; still is a reference tool of necessity for every one seeking where he can best turn to final sources of knowledge.
